Writing about science for the public is challenging.

With deadlines looming, it's hard to carve out time to recharge intellectual batteries, find distinctive stories and get a broad overview of where researchers are headed.

This workshop provides the background material needed to cover astrophysics and cosmology, packing as much as possible into a short time as possible for the busy working journalist.

Lecturers:

John D. Barrow
Axel Brandenburg
Anne Greene
Stefan Hofmann
Ray Jayawardhana
Robert Nemiroff
